The Role

Northeastern University London wishes to appoint an Assistant or Associate Professor (Teaching & Scholarship) in Law. The appointee will teach in core and optional modules in the law faculty, and play a wider role in faculty and University life to support the intellectual mission of the University.

Preference may be given to candidates with active interests in one or more of the following areas: software and/or technology; employment contexts; diversity and inclusion.

Experience of teaching private law subjects would be an advantage. Experience of US higher education institutions would be an advantage, given the integration of the US and UK degrees offered by the University in the coming years.

Core duties will include delivery of core and optional law modules and the development of a scholarship portfolio to support a research-led approach to teaching.

We particularly encourage applications from those with an interest in innovative teaching, learning and assessment; those with experience of supporting a wide variety of students; and those belonging to groups underrepresented in UK higher education. We are open to appointing on a reduced fraction/job-share basis subject to our business needs.

Department

Northeastern University London's law faculty has grown to approximately 120 students in recent years, and prides itself on maintaining a human scale while still offering a full qualifying law degree at the highest levels of sophistication. Recent highlights include graduate success with magic circle training contracts, continuing funded research into the overlap between law and emerging technologies, and the integration of the English law degree into the wider US curriculum, allowing interoperation between US and UK studies in a law degree for the first time.

About the University

Founded in 2012, Northeastern University London (formerly known as New College of the Humanities) has established itself as a prestigious higher education institution based in the heart of London. After becoming part of Northeastern University's global network in early 2019, the University has undergone a period of rapid growth, having been granted Taught Degree Awarding Powers in February 2020 and moved to a new, state-of-the-art campus in 2021. The University continues to grow further expanding its student cohort, courses, network and opportunities.
